Our 5 Key Elements

Five Key Elements for Positive Youth Development are at the center of our movement’s Formula for Impact theory of change. When implemented together and with consistency, the Club meets the developmental needs of youth by providing:

1. A safe, positive environment
2. Access to fun and a sense of belonging
3. Access to supportive relationships
4. Meaningful opportunities and expectations
5. Formal and informal recognition

Economic Impact

More than $21.5 million in Boys & Girls Club program revenue invested in Nevada; 21% from Government Sources (Federal, State, Local and Tribal)

Every dollar invested in Boys & Girls Clubs returns $9.60 in current and future earnings and cost savings to the community!

= $206.4 Million Total Impact*

Our Formula For Impact

From the moment they enter our doors, young people experience the positive impact of the Club Experience.

Building relationships, participating in fun and engaging programs, learning important skills, making new friends and developing their inherent talents – all guided by our team of Youth Development Professionals – gives these kids a sense of belonging and creates a space of emotional safety.

Our Results

When working with youth it is often the net effect of a long series of seemingly little things that adds up to the biggest impact. We know the Boys & Girls Clubs’ program works because we see it in action every day in situations like these...

Mikal, a 9-year-old member of our Carson City Club, was consistently in trouble for his bad behavior. Through our Bully SMART program he learned how to better communicate with peers, especially when he’s feeling over-stimulated. Now Mikal has gone from being a bully around the club to someone who frequently notices when other kids are in trouble or need help standing up for themselves.

As part of their Triple Play program, the Mason Valley Club set up an obstacle course with a section for jumping rope. Surprised to discover that most of the kids didn’t know how to jump rope, the staff stopped the course and taught this skill. In the beginning one member, who is autistic, had severe difficulty with this activity. Now she enjoys jumping rope every day, often using it to calm herself.

Eight-year-old Reynaldo, a member of our Lied Club in Southern Nevada, was new to soccer when he joined our indoor soccer league, but he quickly learned the rules of the game and always showed up ready to play his hardest. Although he wasn’t a strong player, Reynaldo became a vital part of the gym by helping set up the goals and get the equipment ready for the games. With his great character and sportsmanship, Reynaldo is a role model for our younger members.

Right before Turkey Bowl was to start at our Truckee Meadows Club, two teens who had walked two miles to get there showed up. With teams already set, they were placed on teams that needed a little extra boost. Gage, a talented 17-year-old athlete, ended up on a team of 11- and 12-year olds. But he had a great attitude and taught his teammates a few things as he led them all the way to the Championship Game.

Gage’s teammate Zander, age 11, has had anger issues in the past. When one of our staff saw Zander beginning to act out, she started heading over to intervene. But Gage stepped in first. He took Zander under his wing and calmed him down, even telling our staff, “I got him.” Gage’s incredible leadership was wonderful to see.
